I went to the October NGLA meeting last Thursday. It didn't have much going on but a couple of things.

Mayor Peck said not much was going on with the city. Mostly getting ready for the election. Nothing happening on the compost site since the company doing the gravel mining is thinking about what they want to do.

Assistant Police Chief John Garcia didn't have much to say. Most conversation was about kids on e-bikes and what can be done about them. He also stated that cameras can't be used to ticket people with expired plates. The state handles those tickets (local police can issue tickets but they go to the state for processing). So legislation would have to address that concern.

Most of the meeting dealt with a demo of the new Neighborhood Portal. That portal is not up and running yet but they are asking for volunteers to help test it for the next month. If anyone is interested in signing up for that you can go to the NGLA website and sign up there. For the November 20th meeting, that meeting will focus on getting everyone signed up for the portal. My two cents about that: I believe we should have an HOA sign up for that. I propose using the president@creeksideneighborhood.com as the user and then have a password that everyone on the board knows. That way when message boards are being set up for a specific issue for example, one of the board members can take that on. We can talk about this at the next board meeting as needed.

Francie KirkJaffe was going to do a presentation for the Office of Sustainability but she was home sick. That presentation will be scheduled for a future meeting.

The November NGLA meeting is the last one for this year.
